A Sophomore's Farewell to ASJC

What! Two years gone by? It cannot be time to say goodbye so soon. It seems just a few short weeks since I first walked through the doors of ASC-BB for the first time, feeling homesick and very, very lonely.

With this same feeling I go. Even now a yearning to return to interest and words of encouragement from familiar faces fills my heart. Now facing the world, I can feel the protection and guiding hand which our beloved Tommy Hawk has given to me during the past two years. I want to clutch a friend by the arm and say "Don't go separate ways just yet. Wait a little longer." A rush of warmth fills my heart for even those who are "avowed enemies" as I realize how trivial the disagreements really were.

The trips to Buck's and the cool inviting waters of the "Blue Hole" seem even more precious as school nears the end. Even those 'Darn' boys' refusal to lend us a car doesn't seem so bad.

Nevertheless, I must go, taking with me a world of precious memories and leaving experiences which have enriched my life to the fullest extent.

The World Is Mine

Today, upon a bus I saw a lovely girl with golden hair. I envied her; she seemed so gay, and wished I were as fair. Then suddenly she rose to leave; I saw her hobble down the aisle. She had one leg and wore a crutch; and as she passed she smiled.

Oh God, forgive me when I whine. I have two legs; the world is mine.

And when I stopped to buy some sweets, the lad who sold them had such a charm. I talked with him. He seemed so glad—if I were late 'twould be no harm. And as I left, he said to me: "I thank you. You have been so kind. It's nice to talk to folks like you. You see," he said, "I'm blind."

Oh God, forgive me when I whine. I have two eyes! The world is mine.

Later, walking down the street I saw a child, with eyes so blue. He stood and watched the others play; it seemed he knew not what to do. I stopped a moment then I said, "Why don't you join the others, dear?" He looked ahead without a word, and then I knew he could not hear.

Oh God, forgive me when I whine. I have two ears. The world is mine.

With legs to take me where I'd go, with eyes to see the sunset's glow, with ears to hear what I would know, Oh, God, forgive me when I whine. I'm blessed indeed! The world is mine.

Cabot Music Dept. Presents Concert

A concert was presented by the Cabot High Band and Glee Club Thursday, May 2, in the ASJC gymnasium. The numbers were directed by the band leader of the high school, David Murphy.

The Glee Club was composed of 20 girls wearing white blouses and black skirts. They sang "Hear My Prayer," "Ave Verum Corpus," and "Within My Heart." They closed the chorus presentations with a song from Breakfast at Tiffany's "Moon River."

The band played "Salutation" which was dedicated to the ASJC student body. The woodwind section of the band was featured in "Singing Winds," and the brass section was featured in "Brassities." "Blue Tango" and "Gloria March" were closing numbers of the concert.

The group is currently on a tour of central Arkansas.

Arkansas History

Reports and More Reports . . . In the last publication of the "Vanguard" we gave the Zoology students credit for their hard work.

We now feel it is time to give another group of students credit. This group will not be found chasing bugs, rather insects, or doing any kind of classification. They will be found in the library under a great big pile of books.

You may walk into the library any time of the day and see one of your fellow students (or he resembles one of them). He looks at you through his blood-shot eyes and casually waves his hand. You return the greeting and immediately feel sorry for him because you know exactly what he is doing. He has a subject which requires much outside work—more than any other subject he has taken this semester. How do you know this? Easy? He tells you everytime you start a conversation with him. For a two hour course he gives us more work than for a four-hour one.

Class Projects Nears Completion

ZOOLOGY

Members of the zoology class have been collecting insects as a spring project. Each student is required to collect, mount and classify 50 insects from different families. They will classify as to the order and family.

In addition they have studied the pylum, life cycle, habits, characteristics, and other facts about the different insects.

MUSIC FOR CLASSROOM TEACHERS

Students in this music class have been turning in units of work showing how they would correlate all subjects taught including the five musical experiences that are invaluable to every child. In doing so they have learned how the regular classroom teacher can provide musical experience in the every-day classroom without knowing the fundamentals of music.

In addition they have made rhythm band instruments, taught musical games, played simple instruments, taught rote singing, and learned the many uses of the phonograph.

HEALTH AND SAFETY

Fifty members of the Health and Safety class have completed their term projects which are now on display in the film room.

These vary in subjects including organs of the body and its different systems, recreational equipment, sanitation facilities, scientific projects, and fall-out shelters.

Each member of the class

this course is Mrs Barnes. She is called upon to find more information than she ever thought possible on any course.

You are asking—"Just what is this fantastic course?" You guessed it! It is Mr. Owen's Arkansas History class.

There isn't a student in the class that isn't amazed at the material he can find on Arkansas. Why? Some have said they lived here all their lives and never knew there was so much to be learned.

was in charge of examining each product and choosing the top three. The items were judged on time spent, construction, material used, and originality.

Instructor of the Health and Safety class is W. H. Owen J.

ECONOMICS CLASS

Odell Smith of Little Rock spoke to the economics class Thursday, May 9.

Mr. Smith is with the Lab Union of Little Rock and president of the teamsters local 878.

He spoke to the group "Labor Problems in the State of Arkansas."

Speakers for the economics classes this semester have been part of the students' class projects.

Ricky Bump and Robert Lowrey invited Mr. Smith speak at their class meeting.

The education majors Mrs. Wilma Beard's education class are busy making case studies of school children their spring project.

The purpose of this project is to give the future teachers actual experience working with the age group they will teach. He will interview the child and thereby learn the individual feelings of this toward school and teacher.

He will give test and questionnaires to the child to discover his weak and strong points. Included in the report will be a picture of the child and a record of his medical and educational background.

Owen never sleeps. Quoted "How could he and come with some of the questions ed on the state

It has been stated that Mr. asks?"

We are sure that when the semester ends, the students taking Arkansas history will be relatively proud of all they know about that wonderful land of opportunity, "ARKANSAS".

Awards Given on Honors Night

The Lambda Zeta chapter of Phi Theta Kappa met to decide which freshman will receive the "Outstanding Freshman Award" on Honors night.

Evaluation sheets were passed out to the sophomore members, Carol Benson, Evelyn Griffin, Vera Hopper, Phyllis Schupp, Beverley Rust, and Don Hopkins by the president, Jack Henson.

The freshmen who had a grade point average of 3.00 or above were graded individually according to attitude, personality, growth, grooming, extra-curricular activities, and citizenship.

Total evaluation was made by Henson and W. H. Owen, Jr., sponsor.

The winner will be presented a small plaque on Honors night. His name will also be engraved on a larger plaque, which will be displayed in the trophy case. A new name will be added each year by the honor fraternity.

The "Outstanding Freshman Award" will be given for the first time this year.

The sophomore "Best Citizens Award" will go to a boy and a girl from the sophomore class and will also be announced Honors night.

These two sophomores were chosen by the faculty members.

Cuts Lower Grades

Excessive "cuts" can result in lowering grades by one or even more letter grades, students have been warned this semester.

If one has three consecutive or six intermittent absences in a class and the instructor has not been given sufficient reason, the student's grades will be lowered accordingly.

Upon returning to school after an absence the student is instructed to go to the office and make explanation to the Dean. If justifiable reasons are given, the student will be excused for his absences after he has done the make-up work as instructed by the teachers.

Students' absences are excused for severe illness or death in the family, or if they are representing the College in some activity. In any event, the student is expected to make up any work on his own time.

Papoose Staff Has Final '63 Meeting

Jack Henson, 1962-63 Papoose editor, called a meeting of the annual staff for a farewell party Monday, April 8, at 10:00 a. m. in Mrs. Wilma Beard's office, where he and the sponsor served strawberry shortcake.

Mrs. Beard expressed her appreciation to the group for the fine work they have done this year.

Those who attended the meeting were Jack Henson, editor; Angelo Coppola, art editor; Arvela Lynn, freshman editor; Carol Benson, sophomore editor; Kerry Ann Dodge, Beverley Rust, Dianne Kingston, and Mrs. Beard.

Cheryl Craig, freshman editor, and Larry Cazer, sports editor, were unable to attend.

Advice! Advice!

William Owens, Jr., assistant professor of social studies, has posted a bit of advice to all students. You will find the following message on the bulletin board just inside Room 107:

A football coach once said: "As long as you win the homecoming game and the last game of the year, you are o. k. because those are the ones the folks remember."

Students, you might remember this since we are closing the season now and many lasting impressions will be made in the next few weeks.

A real conversationalist will talk whether anyone is listening or not.
